

Elena Evryviades:

I previously worked as the Accounts Manager for an IT and communications company before joining STEMPOINT. Prior to that role, I dedicated ten years to the banking sector, notably administering the "Money Skills Programme" and evolving into a Brand Ambassador for Barclays Bank within the London and Hertfordshire communities.

Following a voluntary redundancy from the bank, I transitioned into a new career path as the Pastoral Support Manager at the school I had attended as a child. This role allowed me to engage directly with children and offer meaningful support to their parents, which I found incredibly fulfilling.

Now, I have the opportunity to merge the diverse skills and experiences I've acquired over the years in banking, finance, and community engagement into my role at STEMPOINT.

Working for a STEM charity is incredibly rewarding, as it allows me to witness firsthand the positive changes we can bring to the lives of young people and the organisations we collaborate with.
