I have been teaching for over 18 years at various schools within and out of the county. I am passionate about improving the life chances and aspirations of children as they leave primary school and continue their journeys elsewhere. I have previously been an Assistant Headteacher, the deputy head, and now the Headteacher at The Leys Primary School, and I recently joined the STEMPOINT Trust this September 2022.

My passion for education stemmed from my Psychology degree; my dissertation focused on children's learning. I later completed a Master in Education where I studied and presented to Ofsted and QCA about the impact of Design & Technology on Children's writing ability. At The Leys, STEM education threads through our whole school curriculum, in Science, Technology, Computing, Art, and Mathematics. We explore many current trends and themes in the world in our STEAM weeks, our pupils enjoy exploring and learning in our new STEAM room.

Outside of school, my time is filled with my two young sons!
