

Rebecca Sussex

I joined STEMPOINT in January 2022 My first career was in publishing, working for BBC Magazines and then as the Newspaper Sales Director for a local daily newspaper. I have worked on a diverse range of products from the launch of the Teletubbies magazine to local Education Awards to life changing stories.

Becoming a school governor, and later Chair of Governors, gave me an excellent insight into the education system which prepared me for my second career within the employability and skills arena.

Working on the STEM Ambassador programme enables me to experience the wealth of opportunity which companies across the East of England are able to offer our young people. I live in the Cambridgeshire Fens with my family, a cat called Benj and a VW camper van called Rusty!
